Revisiting Prior Cancer as an Exclusion Criterion for Cancer Clinical Trials

This study will generate evidence required to objectively reconsider the exclusion of cancer survivors with newly diagnosed (incident) cancer from cancer clinical trials. Specifically, in two aims, we will 1) systematically review how the prior cancer exclusion criterion is incorporated in NCI-sponsored trial protocols and 2) evaluate the impact of prior cancer on cause-specific and all-cause mortality using SEER-Medicare data for older patients with six common and deadly cancers: breast, colorectal, kidney, liver, Non-Hodgkin's lymphoma, and pancreas.
